Opportunities for Undergraduate Students

Fine Arts students win funding from the Provost's Undergraduate Research Fund

The Provost's Undergraduate Research Fund (PURF) provides monetary awards to support research by undergraduate students. "Research" may include scientific studies as well as scholarly work and creative projects. Students applying for this award are supervised by a full-time faculty member, and each recipient of PURF funding presents his or her research at Ohio University's annual Research and Creativity Fair.

Our students were awarded $16,946 in this round of competition with approximately 20% of the total number of university awards as well as 20% of the total funding for this year's PURF awards.
